

GIVE A BEAT

Interview with Fury Young about “Die Jim Crow”

Join us in supporting the “Die Jim Crow” EP Kickstarter campaign, closing on April 6 2016. Artists record most songs within studio spaces; Fury Young records his material within cell walls. Collaborating with former and current incarcerated black Americans across the country,

Young plans to release their recordings as an album, one which takes a long hard look at the racial disparities within our prison systems. Titled “Die Jim Crow,” the project includes the stories and struggles of dozens of incarcerated men and women through a variety of genres ranging from hip-hop to heavy metal.

We spoke to Young about “Die Jim Crow,” and the time and effort put into the upcoming EP, debuting on May 1, 2016. Listen to the interview and please donate to the KICKSTARTER CAMPAIGN by April 6, 2016.

To learn about this music, art, story, and justice project, visit the website: www.diejimcrow.com.